

From what I have read about abortion, I'm glad I had a mother that loved me. It is a cruel and unthinkable thing, you are not only killing something that is alive, but that something is your child. Why do such a thing, do you not love your child, do you not care about human life, or is it that something happened to you so bad that you don't have a heart? By that I mean love for another human being. All the women that do this give terrible excuses that don't fly in my book. Some women I understand where you are coming from, but abortion still isn't the answer if you ask me, there are other ways around what you are doing.

The reasons the women give for doing this go on and on forever. Some say having a baby would interfere with work, school or other responsibilities, do not want to be a single parent, having problems with their husband or partner, and etc. Those women bring a sick feeling to my stomach. Why have children if you know it will interfere with your work or responsibilities? If a child will interfere with school, then you're too young to even be having unprotected sex, stop being dumb and wrap it up. You don't want to be a single parent? Just be quiet, you don't need a father to love your child, all it takes is you. Take LeBron James and Lil Wayne (Dwayne Carter Jr.) for example, both grew up without a father and still became successful; LeBron a NBA player, now a NBA champion, and Lil Wayne a famous rapper, making millions a week. And for all those women doing it because of relationship problems, I'm no Dr. Phil, but maybe it wasn't meant to be, doesn't mean your child has to die.

Now that I got that off my chest, I understand some women's position on the subject. If you have physical problems with your health then try everything, and if it's not enough make a decision in the long run. Sadly for those who have been sexually assaulted, I'm truly sorry, I know it is probably hard to love someone you didn't intend to bring into this world, but don't think abortion is the only answer, give the child up for adoption, at least give the child a chance to be loved. To all the women who can't afford a child, I still don't take that as an excuse, I've been there, my mother had three children, and we lived in an area where big paying jobs were scarce, but we still made it, we had help from family, friends, and even our church helped until my mother got a good paying job and we were living good. Now look at us, we have all the new things that come out in stores, and can put clothes on our back with ease, so if my mother could do it, what's stopping you. Don't result in something so low, consider the alternatives, my mother did.

When people read this I hope they get a sense of what I'm saying. Abortion truly is terrible, and I'm glad I know no one who has gone down that road. In the future I hope this option will be out of the question, by that I mean I hope will be illegal. What I really hope is that women will stop doing this, and understand it is wrong. To women who don't care, think of it this way, you wouldn't be here today if your mother hadn't decided to have you. The choice isn't yours it's your child's, who's to say your child wanted to die, that question answers its self, no one. Your child isn't born yet, so there is no one to defend its rights. Ask yourself this, do you want to be responsible for taking a life, forget what the doctors say, if you are pregnant, then that child is alive, no science of facts can change that.
